Admission: the young person is separated from peers due to concerns in relation to their presentation when they are admitted to Oberstown. Concerns may relate to intoxication and/or erratic behaviours that are identified as creating a significant risk to the young person or others.

Behavioural: the young person presents with aggressive, violent and/or threatening behaviours toward peers, staff or property in Oberstown that result in a significant risk to safety and security.

Contraband: the young person has in their possession a banned item. These items are banned due to the health and safety and security risk the pose and/or are prohibited to be in Oberstown by law, e.g, illicit drugs, cigarettes, lighters, mobile phones.

Individual Programme: the young person has been identified as requiring very specific support and an individual programme is devised to re-integrate them into the larger peer group. This programme may involve structured periods of time during the day where they mix on a phased basis with a peer or two and periods of time where they are not mixing with peers.

Self-Imposed: the young person has sought not to mix with peers. This is not encouraged and campus staff will work to address the reason the young person has sought to be separated from peers.

Other: the young person was not mixing with peers due to medical advice.
